From:	Kevin Scully
To:	April Warman; Carl Cosby; Dan Shortall; Natalie Fillmore; Mike Robertson; Bruce Hickey; Tiffany Cail; Rob Webber; Marley Burke
Subject:	Fw: Naming new streets in REXTON
Date:	September 29, 2026 8:54:19 PM

Get Outlook for Android

From: Barry Robertson <barryr111@gmail.com>
Sent: Monday, 28 September 2026 17:47:55
To: Kevin Scully <kscully@5-rivers.ca>
Subject: Naming new streets in REXTON

[You don't often get email from barryr111@gmail.com. Learn why this is important at https://aka.ms/LearnAboutSenderIdentification]

Hi Kevin and Councillors. Let's try again. (I was trying to send to all the council but this didn't happen either, I trust you will forward)
Congratulations to all of you for being elected in the last election. This is my first time ever writing to the Village Council in my 40+ years of living in REXTON. Don't worry I am not going to be whining. I always read the seasonal newsletters that are published from cover to cover. I find them interesting and informative, nicely presented.
I see in the last letter that you will be naming a couple new streets. I know that this is late but not too late. I don't believe that we have any streets in this area named after fallen soldiers. A while back I had to go to Mike's bike shop in Dieppe. The shop is on Englehart street. My first reaction was that it was a pretty English name for a French town, but quickly remembered why. Every fallen Soldier from Dieppe has a street named after them in their honour. James Engleehart basically died in my dad's arms during the Second World War. When I went into Mike's bike shop I wanted to tell the guy who was serving mesome history behind the street name but couldn't because I thought I might start crying.

Our town will be looking for some street names and I can't imagine that anyone would have any opposition in naming these new streets after some of our local heroes. I went to the Cenotaph this morning and there are the names of 10 soldiers who gave up their lives during World War Two. The toughest decision would be choosing the names. The naming could be done in collaboration with the Legion and I realized that time would be a factor in having this done before Remembrance Day, but I hope that you will take this into consideration down the road.
Thanks for listening.
Barry Robertson
Sent from my iPad